

WBC CLEAN BOXING PROGRAM

The WBC has had as its only priority the safety, welfare and wellbeing of the fighters before, during and after their boxing career in the ring.

The WBC has worked diligently with VADA to create an integrated program to protect the fighters of the world from the dangers of drugs, PED's, human growth hormone and several other substances and practices, which are hurtful directly and indirectly to the person using them and to their opponents.

The WBC Clean Boxing Program is designed to educate through awareness programs to try to eradicate the use of any substance and procedure related to the above-mentioned. There are also testing procedures, which are both voluntary and mandatory.

The WBC and VADA, as well as all the members of the boxing community from every single country of the world will continue this quest to make boxing better and safer to our athletes who are our heroes in the ring.